A little sheep was with her family on the farm.

They were running out of grass to graze on. One day, the flock of sheep decided to move to greener pastures.

But first, the flock had to find a suitable spot.

Even though she was still young and not ready to be on her own, the little sheep went along anyway to help look for food.

She kept walking and walking, and slowly went further and further away from her family.

Just as she found a new farm,
she came across a pack of wolves.

Unfortunately, her parents hadn't taught her about the dangerous ways of the wolves yet.

Thinking that they wanted to be friends with her, the little sheep went to talk to them.

The wolves told her not to go back to her family as she would have more fun with them.

So she learnt the ways of the wolves.
They terrorised the other animals in the neighbourhood.

The little sheep learnt to do the same and started bullying the other animals too, because it was the only way for her to fit in...

The little sheep grew up thinking she was a wolf.

I am a wolf...

But one day, she overheard the wolves talking when they thought she wasn't around.

"She's just a silly sheep," one muttered.

"No one would be scared of her."

"Exactly," another said.

"She can help us get close to the others without them running away."

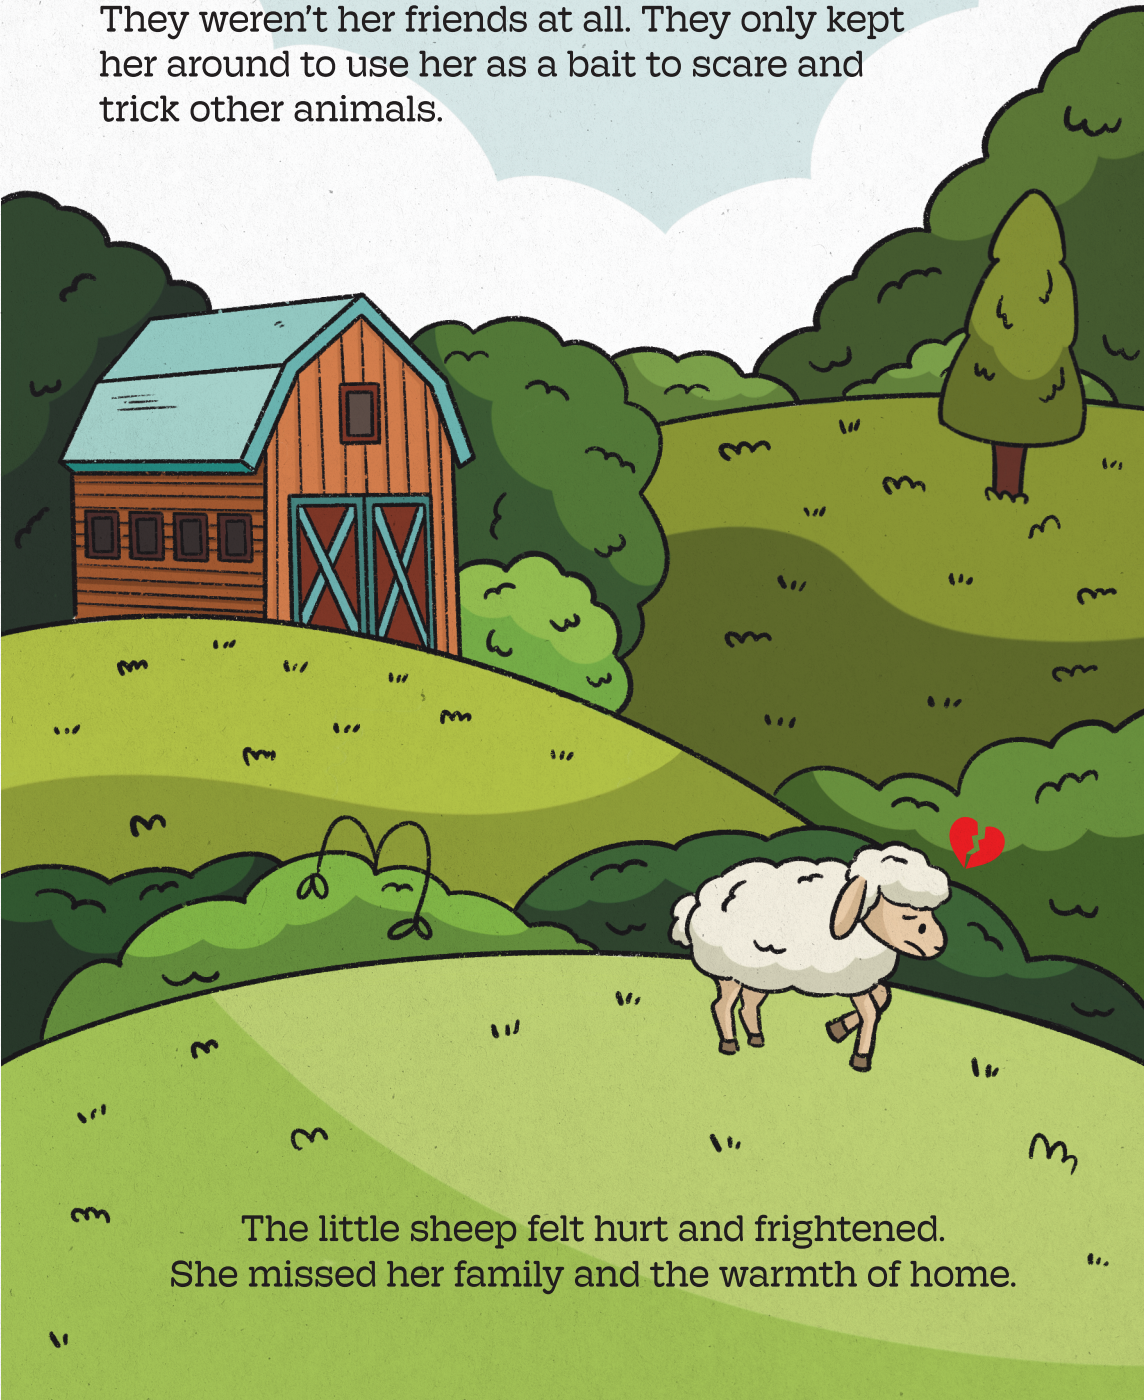

She is just a silly sheep, no one would be scared of her...

The little sheep's heart sank.

They weren't her friends at all. They only kept her around to use her as a bait to scare and trick other animals.

The little sheep felt hurt and frightened.
She missed her family and the warmth of home.

So one day, she ran away and found her way back to her flock. She was finally reunited with her parents.

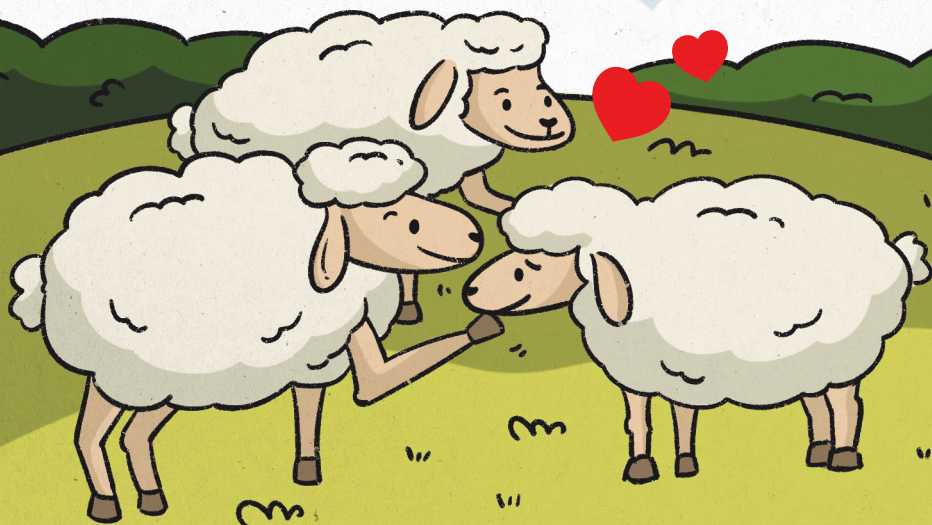

I'm so happy to see you again!!

However, she still behaved like a wolf and everyone found her to be very mean.

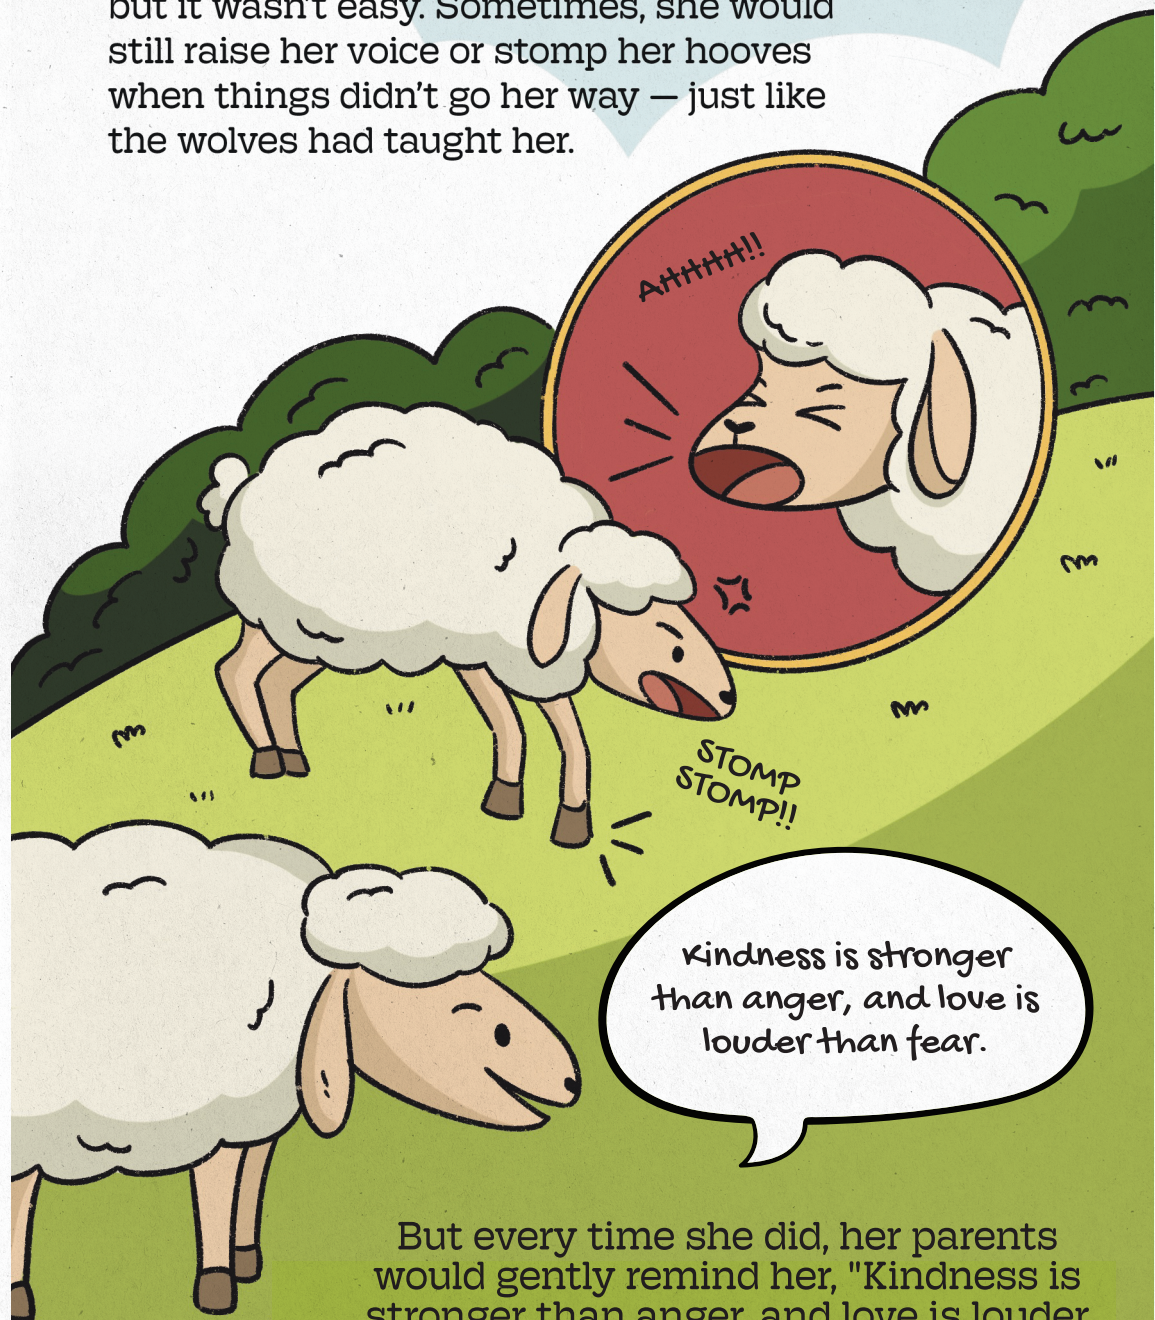

Even so, her parents were so full of love.
They told her that she didn't have to behave badly, as being nice and friendly can bring happiness to everyone around her.

I want to be just like my parents

So the little sheep started to change her ways as she wanted to be just like her parents.

The little sheep tried her best to change, but it wasn't easy. Sometimes, she would still raise her voice or stomp her hooves when things didn't go her way — just like the wolves had taught her.

But every time she did, her parents would gently remind her, "Kindness is stronger than anger, and love is louder than fear."

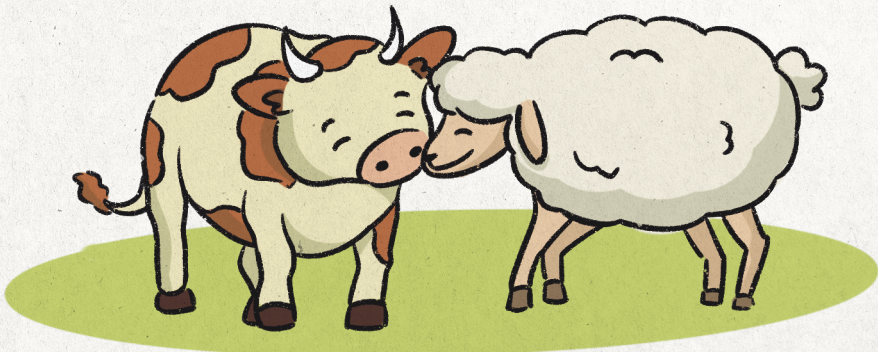

So the little sheep began to learn new ways.
She helped the younger lambs cross the stream.

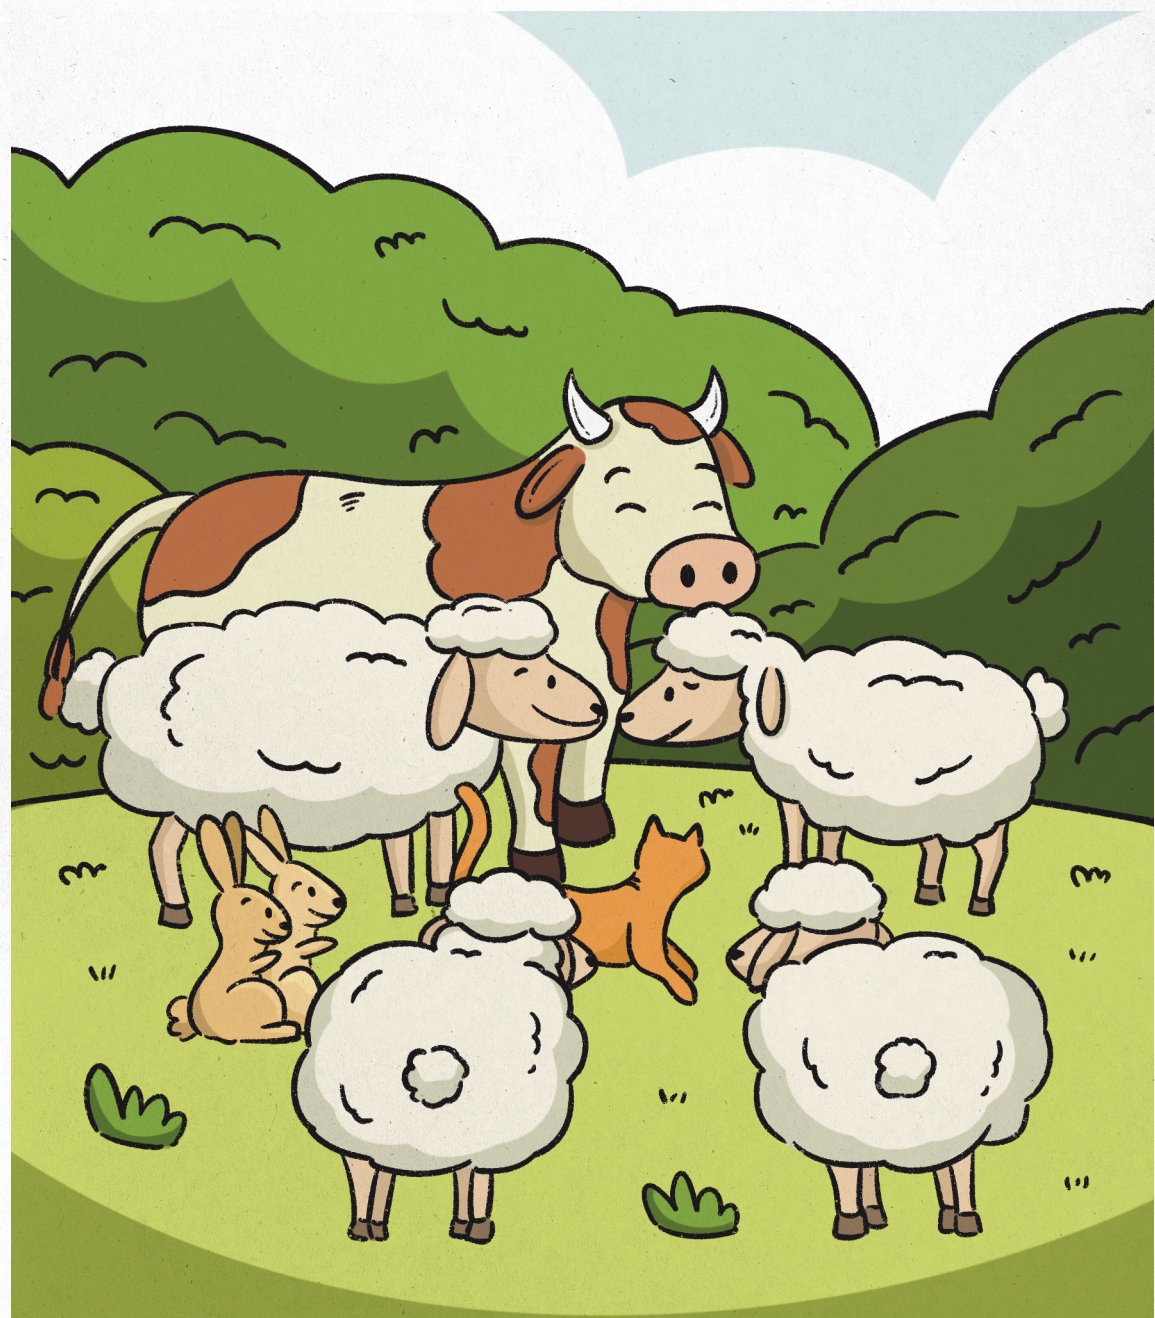

She shared her grass with the older sheep
who couldn't chew as fast.

She even said sorry to the cow she had once scared, and they became friends.

At first, the other animals were unsure.

But slowly, they began to see the little sheep for who she really was — not a wolf in disguise, but a brave little sheep who was learning to be good again.

Every day, she tried a little harder to be kinder and more like the sheep she was meant to be.

And every day, she felt a little lighter,
a little happier.

One morning, the little sheep looked around at her family, her friends, and the green pastures they had found — and she knew in her heart that she had found her way home.

SYNOPSIS

A young sheep, eager to help her flock, wanders too far and finds herself in the company of wolves. Feeling out of place and unsure of her own worth, she adopts their unkind ways, believing it's the only way to fit in. Over time, she forgets who she really is and begins to feel like a wolf herself — mean, lonely, and misunderstood.

As time passes, when the little sheep realises that the wolves are only using her, she runs back home — scared that her family will not accept the sheep she has become. Instead, her loving parents welcome her back and remind her that she is never too late to start over. With their support, she learns that it takes real courage to be kind, to stand up to bad influences, and to choose a different path.
